

Jagorawi Golf & Country Club is Indonesia's only golf establishment with 45 Championship Holes. The Old Course started construction in 1976 as a dream of the Owner Mr. Zakir to create Indonesia's home of Championship Golf. The original design team was Peter Thomson and Mike Wolveridge whose 3rd design partner at that time was Ron Fream who went on to Founder Golfplan USA. The New Course which hosted the 1997 Indonesian Open Golf Championship (won by Australia's Craig Parry) was designed and built by the same team minus Ron Fream. Mr. Zakir had major input with Max Wexler when designing the Z-Nine, one of the prettiest Golf Courses imaginable which intertwines with both the Cikeas and Cisadane rivers. Hard work and constant dedication have gone into the development of these courses and to see so many golfers enjoying them every week makes it all worth while.

For those who are really serious about improving their golf, there is now the Commonwealth Bank Institute of Golf (CBIORG) one of Indonesia's first golf performance facilities of a World class standard. There are many different programs tailored to suit each individual requirement also an intensive Junior Scholarship Program aiming to give a select group of talented young golfers every chance of becoming Indonesia's first hope of success on a PGA Tour.
